what are the major problems facing in this particular industry?

Ans:

There are several major problems facing the transport industry, including:

1. Traffic congestion
2. Pollution.
3. Safety concerns
4. Infrastructure maintenance
5. Accessibility

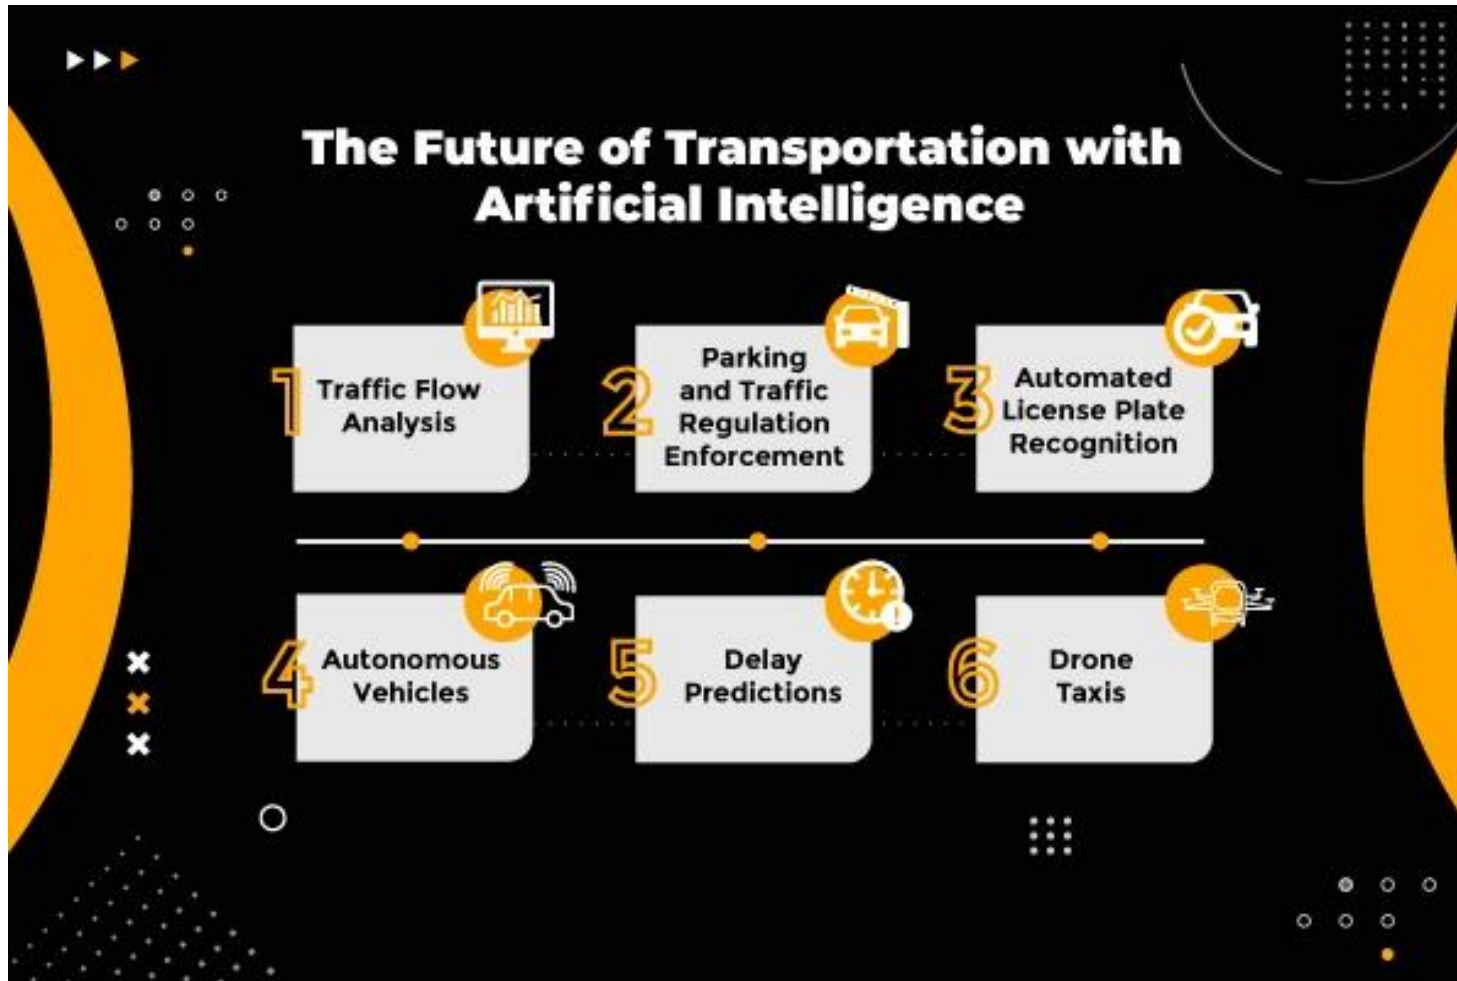

what will be the future of this industry, if AI is implemented?

Ans:

The future AI in transportation will see advanced technology making driving safer. Rear-view cameras, blind spot monitoring, adaptive cruise control, lane keeping technology, and collision avoidance are allowing modern vehicles to be increasingly aware of the roads and surrounding vehicles. Machine learning plays a crucial role in making sense of all that data and delivering predictive warnings to the driver. Advanced Driver Assistance Systems use AI to learn the behavior of drivers and anticipate when problems might occur.

there are over 1.2 billion vehicles on the road today, with the total likely to cross over 2 billion by 2035.

what is the market of this industry with AI?

what is my idea and what will I have to develop in this industry?

Ans:

Market expectations for transportation and logistics are lower than for the 500 Index on average. Transportation and logistics players cannot simply grow their way out of the situation—addressing comparatively low must be at the core of any value-creating strategy.
